Pacific Cheese Company, a cheese supplier, is creating 16 jobs in Reno, Nevada. The company will expand its manufacturing facility in the city.

“Once we acquired Chateau Cheese Corp., the decision to locate our cheese processing division in Reno was an easy one to make,” said Dale Tate, CFO of Pacific Cheese Company. “The pro-business tax climate, aggressive state incentive programs, and location to the West Coast and our headquarters in California were all paramount in helping us make that decision.”

The Economic Development Authority of Western Nevada expects to see a five-year economic impact of more than $66.3 million in the area due to the expansion. Pacific Cheese is applying for state incentives.
